Dear Colorado River Storage Project and Desert Southwest Region Customers:

Earlier this year and at the request of customers, Western Area Power Administration (WAPA) paused its collaborative investigation of the CRSP-DSW Combined Transmission Rate. Customers expressed concern about available transmission capacity between regions and the value of the combined rate in an organized market, among other concerns.

After careful consideration, WAPA has decided to end the investigation of the CRSP-DSW Combined Transmission Rate. WAPA staff learned much during the effort, including gaining a better understanding of the power systems and customer needs. WAPA also developed analytical techniques and ratemaking tools that will be employed in future initiatives.

Thank you for your participation, excellent input, and partnership during the initiative.

Sincerely,
